Who Hid the Pennies?

The Salisbury Press-Spectator tells its readers that Wednesday afternoon while Roadoverseer N. R. Wright and a force of six hands were working the main road between Salisbury and Shannondale they found 676 pennies, one dime and six nickles.

The money was not wrapped up and was found a few inches below the ground, near a telephone pole standing on the corner where the road turns west toward Sy Paton's.

The pole was leaning to one side considerably and Omer Crawford set about to straighten it. Imagine his surprise when, after moving a shovel full of dirt, he scooped out the pennies.

Omer divided with the boys and each took home a pocket full of money. However, all say if the owner will call and tell them why and when he put the money there, all will be returned to him. Mr. Wright said that since the find it is no trouble at all to get people to work the road, and that he now had more applications for work than he knows what to do with.

Mayor's Court.

We are informed by the Star his honor, C. M. Hopper of Sumner, tried his maiden case as chief executive of that village Monday afternoon. The case was caused by Marshal Berry arresting six young men at the Burlington depot Saturday night on a charge of "shooting craps." The boys protested their innocence and asked an immediate trial, but the marshal, owing to the lateness of the hour, told them they could wait till Monday for a hearing, and released them on their own recognizance until that time. The mayor set the trial for 5 p. m., and long before that hour had arrived, the court room was jammed with men and boys, all eager to hear the particulars as they should be brought out by the evidence. The town was represented by L. Sharp and the defendant by U. A. House. After hearing the evidence the mayor pronounced the boys not guilty and they were discharged.

It is told that when the marshal made his raid on the freight room Saturday night one of the boys was so badly frightened that he tried to get out through a knot hole, and that another actually shinned up the timbers and clung to a rafter like a bat until No. 14 came in, when he made his get-away in the confusion of the incoming train.

Mayor Hopper has demonstrated that he is going to be a dignified as well as a fair and impartial judge.
